

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A plurality of light direction detectors are provided on an image display screen and the position of a light source in the real space is detected so as to give a shadow to a display object within a display image by seasoning three-dimensional image data with these items of information.